Clean Energy Group President Praises New York Bond Financing

Today, NYSERDA announced that it had issued bonds, the first in the country, to finance and refinance loans that were issued through the Green Jobs-Green New York (GJGNY) program to fund energy efficiency improvements in residential dwellings. The Bonds will be guaranteed by the New York State Environmental Facilities Corporation, which manages the largest Clean Water State Revolving Fund (SRF) program in the U.S.

Clean Energy Group (CEG) President Lewis Milford praised the finance offering of New York’s Green Bank, a novel approach that will merge water and energy bonding authority to promote clean energy.

“Today, New York broke new ground in clean energy financing,” said Milford. “It is the first time in the country that a bond issued by a state water authority has been used to finance an energy efficiency project. Now other states can follow suit and raise more energy financing through these strategies.”

This is the kind of work that CEG is pursuing with Council of Development Finance Agencies (CDFA), through their Clean Energy and Bond Finance Initiative (CEBFI at http://cleanenergybondfinance.org/).

This is the first time that an SRF bond authority has guaranteed bonds that finance energy efficiency projects. It is a nationally replicable model as all states have water bonding authorities that leverage EPA Clean Water State Revolving Funds. It would allow state bonding agencies that currently issue bonds with strong credit ratings under the SRF program to now issue bonds or provide credit enhancement for energy efficiency and clean energy. It would overcome the ratings challenges that clean energy projects have often faced in obtaining financing through the public capital markets.
